NRC REGULATORY ISSUE SUMMARY 2007-13
VERIFICATION OF THE AUTHENTICITY OF MATERIALS POSSESSION LICENSES

ADDRESSEES

All U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) materials licensees. All Agreement State Radiation Control Program Directors and State Liaison Officers.

INTENT

NRC is issuing this regulatory issue summary (RIS) to emphasize the importance of licensees maintaining situational awareness before and during all transfers of radioactive material. This RIS requires no action, or written response.

BACKGROUND

In July 2006, the NRC issued Information Notice (IN) 2006-12. This IN informed addressees that since September 11, 2001, NRC has taken aggressive measures to secure and control radioactive materials because of the risk associated with their potential use in malevolent activities. The purpose of the IN was to reiterate the requirements that a licensee seeking to transfer licensed material must verify that the transferees' license authorizes the receipt of the type, form, and quantity of material to be transferred, pursuant to 10 CFR 30.41(c), 40.51(c), and 70.42(c). The IN provided examples of encounters when transferors of the material should take extra care.

In May 2007, the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO) Forensic Audits and Special Investigations team fraudulently obtained a license from the NRC authorizing the use of six portable moisture density gauges. Using commercially available software, GAO altered the license to increase the maximum possession limits and obtain quotes for the purchase of a total of 45 portable moisture density gauges from two companies. GAO concluded that individuals seeking to use the material for malevolent activities could have completed the purchases and obtained the gauges.

SUMMARY OF ISSUE

As a result of the GAO activities, NRC staff promptly issued internal guidance that requires either on-site inspections or in-office meetings for many new materials license applicants.

Since the GAO notified the NRC about obtaining a license through fraud, the NRC has continued to pursue both short-term and long-term actions to address potential materials security vulnerabilities. These efforts include an action plan which will review licensing guidance as well as programs designed to track radioactive material and research ways to make it more difficult to counterfeit NRC licenses. The NRC has also formed a working group that will develop and issue revised guidance to address pre-licensing reviews and site visits. Rulemaking to codify these actions is also being pursued. The NRC believes that a more robust licensing process will minimize the potential for individuals to acquire radioactive material to conduct malevolent activities.

While the NRC works to close potential security vulnerabilities in its materials licensing process, materials licensees transferring material are asked to, in addition to the requirements in 10 CFR 30.41(c), 40.51(c), and 70.42(c), practice increased vigilance to ensure that radioactive material is not used for malevolent purposes.

As stated in IN 2006-12, when transferring licensed material, licensees should be vigilant, especially when a long period of time has transpired since the last transfer of material. IN 2006-12 also encourages licensees to remain vigilant any time there is a change in procedure or routine that may raise reasonable suspicion about the legitimacy of the order or the transferee's identity. The licensee should look for changes in routine (i.e. an established pattern of conduct) such as: 1) a significant increase in the quantity of material ordered; 2) a change in location where the material is to be delivered; 3) a change in type or form of material; or 4) a change in key personnel, without prior notice. If these changes are unexplained in the transfer request or purchase order, or if the request or order is on letterhead which is different from previous orders, or does not match the identity of the transferee, care should be exercised to verify the legitimacy of the licensee. Any of these changes could be (and generally are) legitimate, but they could also be precursors to the diversion of materials for other than their authorized use. In the event that a licensee transferring material has questions about the authenticity of the transferee, the licensee should pursue further information to alleviate the concern.

Licensees should contact the NRC or licensing agency of an Agreement State with any concerns regarding the legitimacy of any licenses or any suspicious requests. Particular attention should be given to new customers.
